101 hotel

101 hotel

The design at 101 hotel, is something worth seeing. It is a hip spot in early modernist style located in an old building built in the 1930's on a busy corner in downtown Reykjavík.

101 hotel is the work of the owner, Ingibjörg Pálmadóttir, who designed the whole place in a minimalist style with a monochromatic palette of volcanic black and grays, reflecting Iceland's landscape. Warm American oak flooring stretches across the building's entire expanse. An impressive art collection, which holds many of the leading contemporary artists in Iceland perks up the walls and the cozy lounge, with a fireplace, leather banquettes and upholstered chairs makes the stay even more relaxing.

The hotel's beating heart is the casual restaurant and the narrow bar with high walls and a glass ceiling, where hamburgers with cheese and fashionable dishes sit side by side on the menu and all for a really reasonable price. The restaurant is one of the trendiest places in town and serves a delicious combination of modern Icelandic and international cuisine with Indian influences. Breakfast is served from 07:00 until 10:30, and until 11:00 on weekends.

Opening hours: The restaurant is open from 07:00- 23:00.
