

Have a chilling experience at b5

Tourist life can be hectic. Running around between museums, shops and hotel rooms, aching feet can scream for a chance to sit down. And chill out. In that case, b5 is the place to go.

In its welcoming and bright surroundings, visitors can lounge on the big sofas or sit by the bookshelves to enjoy a cup of coffee.

The bistro offers light courses at affordable prices. It focuses on the best of Icelandic products and highlights whatever is in season at the moment. After the kitchen closes in the evening, specifically weekends, b5 turns into the most popular nightclub in Iceland. On the same note, the high quality coffee comes from a devoted Icelandic manufacturer.

B5 offers a friendly, low-key environment amidst stunning designs, setting the stage for a relaxing atmosphere. With b5's soft ambience/house music in your ears, you are welcome to use the wireless internet free of charge or leaf through one of the books. You could even write one without anyone raising an eyebrow. The wine list focuses both on wine by the glass, or by bottles with variety in class and price, with an emphasis being put on different grapes. It also presents glasses of rosé and sparkling wine.
